

Abstract

The Book "The Leadership Star ", written by Mr. Iftikhar Khan, consists of 206 pages of medium-sized pages and is divided into seven chapters. The book deals mainly with the concept of leadership and tries to set up an independent space for the concept of leadership within the related studies of administration science. The author believes that there is an evident confusion between the concept of leadership and that of management among a large number of those who are interested in this subject, as they do not tend to differentiate between the two concepts.

We have translated the first and second chapters in addition to a part of the third chapter of the book. The first chapter deals with the concept of leadership and tries to find a definition by reviewing many definitions from many writers in this field of studies. The second chapter handles the theoretical framework of the leadership concept and sets boundaries between it and other misconceptions taking the concept of leadership away from the concept of management. In the third chapter the author offers a presentation of the leaders' tasks such as: strategic planning and supervision, and hints that it is not the job of the leaders to look after the routine works, which should be done by the managers.
