

Abstract

The cellular and drone technologies have advanced enough to be combined. This thesis is about constructing a prototype working with radio frequency. Next, the suitability of the LTE is observed to be equal to the traditional radio frequency as a control link.